Tougher Controls Are Asked by Truman Who Cites Dangers Attending Inflation

WASHINGTON, June 15—(AP)—President Truman's plea for his anti-inflation program has fired administration leaders in Congress with hope that a wave of public opinion may help them win more powerful economic controls.

Despite Mr. Truman's public declaration last night that runaway inflation could give Russia global victory "without firing a shot," the controls legislation was still in trouble on both sides of the Capitol.

Congressional sentiment appeared strong for continuance, with some modifications, of the present defense production act instead of the new and tougher law asked by the president.

In carrying his appeal to the people of television and radio, Mr. Truman said:

"This is a fight for everyone to join—a fight for the very life of this nation. x x x We've got to have a good, strong inflation-control law on the books if we are going to get through this emergency successfully."

Although the present law expires June 30, the House banking committee recessed until Monday its closed-door consideration of the president's proposal for a new two-year law. Chairman Spence (D-Ky) was anything but optimistic about the chances of turning out a tougher controls measure.

He told a reporter today that while he hoped for committee action next week, he wouldn't be surprised if enough Democrats and Republicans teamed up to put across a straight continuance of the present law.

Mr. Truman said in his message to the nation that some congressional leaders told him "they were under a lot of pressure from the special interests to do away with controls, and that the consumers were not making themselves heard."

Spence said he opposed even a temporary extension of the old law; he—like Truman—wants a tougher bill.

The Senate banking committee yesterday tentatively beat proposals for a straight nine-month extension of the existing law but

Tanks Advance For Miles and Find No Enemy

Communists Battling Fiercely Along the Eastern Section

By OLEN CLEMENTS

TOKYO, June 15—(AP)—

Large numbers of fresh Red troops were reported digging in today on the rain-swept ridges of eastern Korea.

Reds battled United Nations tank columns on the central front, but vanished completely in the west.

By OLEN CLEMENTS

TOKYO, June 15—(AP)—

Communist troops in the scrubby hills near Kumhwa and Hangye fought fiercely today against advancing Allied infantrymen on the eastern Korean front.

To the west, United Nations patrols reached out three to six miles without finding Reds, after nullifying the Chinese buildup areas around gutted Chorwon, Kumhwa and Pyongyang.

The dormant Red air force showed signs of life. Two planes struck far behind UN lines in their deepest penetration in months.

The United Nations "could take care of the Chinese air force" with combat planes already in Japan and Korea, U. S. Air Secretary Thomas J. Finletter commented in Tokyo. U. S. army officers have estimated the Reds have 3,000 planes in Manchuria.

It might be a different story if the Russians entered the war with their "very powerful" air force, Finletter said. That would create "a very serious situation." However, he said, he had no information that Russians have been flying the Soviet type jets that have tangled with American planes over northwestern Korea.

The two Red air strikes Thursday morning were by propeller type craft. One plane bombed and strafed an Allied air field at Suwon, 25 miles south of Seoul. Another aided Yongdongpo, a suburb of the old Korean capital.

U. N. air forces struck back promptly. They hit three Red air fields in western Korea. Far East air forces reported runways at Sunan and Suncheon were "post-holed by bombs." Sariwon was bombed at night.

Rain clouds restricted air activity over Korea Friday.

Just how far Allied commanders intend to send their ground troops inside North Korea in their present drive was puzzling. Both the U. S. 8th Army and general headquarters communiques Friday morning mentioned only patrols going beyond present lines.

They have pushed two spearheads roughly 30 miles north of the 38th Parallel—through the steep hills of the east coast before Kamsong, and up a fertile western valley through Pyongyang.

If the supreme Allied commander, Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, decides to send strong forces up the Pongyang valley to Wonsan on the east coast, he may clamp sizeable Red forces in a vise.

All of Thursday's ground fighting was in this eastern area between these two forces.

Heaviest fighting was around Kumhwa on the edge of Pongyang valley. UN troops are trying to drive out of the captured "iron triangle" from Kumhwa toward Kumsong, new base for Red forces in the east.

Fear Many Lives Lost As Orphanage Burns

MONTREAL, June 15—(AP)—Fire broke out in a five-story home for the aged and orphans here today, and more than an hour later 40 persons were reported still trapped in the blazing building.

About 200 persons, most of them orphaned children, were housed in the building, the Hospice St. Cunegonde, operated by Roman Catholic nuns in midtown Montreal. Most of the occupants were reported to have been led to safety.

Shortly after the fire broke out, a fireman said he knew of two deaths.

Furniture Has Moved Slowly

Little Change Seen In Prices

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK, June 15—(AP)—If your wife is after you to refurbish a room or a house, keep an eye on Grand Rapids and Chicago next week.

Furniture makers unveil their fall lines then and they're worried because in recent months you haven't been buying as much new furniture as your wife—and the manufacturers—think you should.

They hope their new designs will change your mind.

Prices at the markets next week are expected to be about the same level as those on the spring lines show in the January markets. But there will be a wider selection in the lower-priced fields.

Designers have concentrated on eye-appeal this time to try to coax retailers to forget high inventories—the retailers bought over-enthusiastically in the January markets, when they feared shortages might develop, particularly in hardware.

Some manufacturers insist stoutly that fall will see a pickup in sales. An official of the American Furniture Mart in Chicago thinks 1951 will prove to be like 1949—an inventory recession in the spring months, but booming business in the fall.

But many manufacturers say frankly that this is unquestionably a buyers' market. And the National Retail Furniture Association says that at the end of May store inventories were 25 percent higher than a year ago.

Many furniture makers have kept going close to capacity in recent weeks in spite of the falling off in new orders—backlogs were big enough to carry them through. The rub could come if the June markets don't produce orders for fall delivery.

Defense Secretary Marshall Denounced by Sen. McCarthy

WASHINGTON, June 15—(AP)—Senator McCarthy (R-Wis) bitterly assailed Secretary of Defense George C. Marshall yesterday in a "mysterious, powerful" figure in "a great conspiracy" to deliver this country to Communism.

McCarthy included his longtime foe, Secretary of State Acheson, as another member of what the Senator termed "a conspiracy of infamy so black that, when it is finally exposed, its principals shall be forever deserving of the maledictions of all honest men."

Neither Marshall nor Acheson had any comment.

And highly-placed Democratic senators indicated they would ignore the attack on Marshall and Acheson.

McCarthy took the Senate floor yesterday with a 169-page, 60,000-word speech charging Marshall sided with the Russians on every

Lausche Vetoes 5 More Bills And Signs 2

Welfare Department Measure Brings First Veto

COLUMBUS, June 15—(AP)—Gov. Frank J. Lausche today vetoed five more bills passed by the last legislature and signed two others into law.

Major measures vetoed sought to split the welfare department into two separate departments and to increase the pay of present common pleas judges.

A third veto applied to a measure eliminating a two-mill tax levy against real estate of financial institutions. The governor said although the levy yielded only $75,000 a year he opposed its exemption.

Two vetoes dealt with legislation affecting police and firemen. One sought to establish heart disease as grounds for disability benefits. The employing governmental agency would be obliged to show the heart ailment was not caused by a fireman's work.

"The bill seeks to establish a new principle of proof which would lend itself to serious abuse," the governor said.

The other measure sought to lower the minimum retirement age of policemen desiring a pension of 52 to 50 years. Present law allows policemen with 25 years service to retire on pension at age 52.

"In my opinion, that retirement age already is extremely liberal," Lausche said.

One of the bills signed permits firemen a choice of retirement benefits. Older men who have yet to retire now can receive in benefits 62 and 1/2 percent of their salary at the time of their retirement.

The new law allows them to elect to receive 66 percent of their highest pay over a five-year period.

The other bill signed into law increases the counties' share of the salary of common pleas judges from a maximum of $8,000 to $9,000. Another bill awaiting the governor's action seeks to increase the state's share of common pleas judges pay from $3,000 to $4,000 a year.

Today's vetoes increased the total to 10. The legislature has over-ridden one of them, and will consider the others next Tuesday when members return for final adjournment. The governor still has 26 measures awaiting action. He is expected to veto some of them.

The vetoed welfare department measure sought to create a department of public assistance independent of the welfare department. The public assistance department was proposed to handle old age pensions, poor relief, aid for dependent children, and other assistance programs, under a director with cabinet status. The welfare department would have been left with the division of mental hygiene, prisons, the Bureau of Juvenile Research and the division of business administration.

Lausche said the bill "contains no clear, specific proposals for better administration of welfare work or the management of the state's institutions."

Echo of Brink's $1,700,000 Theft

SOMERVILLE, Mass., June 15—(AP)—Somerville police today were trying to determine whether $12,000 in cash found in rubbish in the cellar of a vacant house had any connection with the $1,700,000 Brink's Money Express Company holdup in Boston January 17, 1950.

One strong clue previously had led police and FBI investigators to Somerville in the hunt for the Brink's robbers. That was the finding—soon after the holdup—of a pistol, taken from one of the Brink's guards during the robbery. The pistol, picked up by a child on a river bank, later was positively identified as a Brink's gun.

Lt. James V. Crowley of the Boston police said the Boston police were interested in the Somerville angle but had not yet entered the case.

Bandits Escape With $42,000

Payroll Robbery Is Pulled at Warren

WARREN, June 15—(AP)—A $42,000 payroll robbery had police scouring northern Ohio today.

Victims of the well-planned holdup were Harlan Villers, 29, secretary, and Tom Triflette, 49, assistant treasurer, of the Aristoly Federal Credit Union.

They were on their way to cash pay checks at the Copperhead Steel Co. yesterday when four masked men pulled alongside in another car.

After forcing Triflette to the side of the road the bandits grabbed the money and commanded their victims to drive them a little farther down the highway. A short time later they left the car but kept the money.

All of the money stolen was insured. The two victims operate a payroll savings organization, one function of which is to cash payroll checks.

Villers and Triflette, who were not harmed, said all four men appeared between 30 and 35. Police reported they believed two cars used by the four were stolen.

Meanderings

By Wash Fayette

Washington C. H. got some nationwide publicity in the May-June issue of "Street Lighting," a magazine circulated throughout the United States to officials responsible for lighting America's streets and highways. A picture of downtown Court Street is printed in an advertisement on page 22 of the magazine. It shows Court Street at night, looking west, as illuminated by lights on 54 boulevard standards erected by the Dayton Power and Light Co.

A great many Fayette counties have never heard the weird notes of the hoot owl, or great horn owl, which at one time was so abundant in the forests of Fayette County.

I often heard these weird calls of the great owl from the depths of some forest years ago.

It seems that there are still a few of the big owls in isolated areas of the county.

Oliver Peters, familiarly known as the "Paint Valley Prophet," told me this week that he believes a pair of the hoot owls have their nest in a large sycamore tree along Sugar Creek, a mile or two northeast of Staunton.

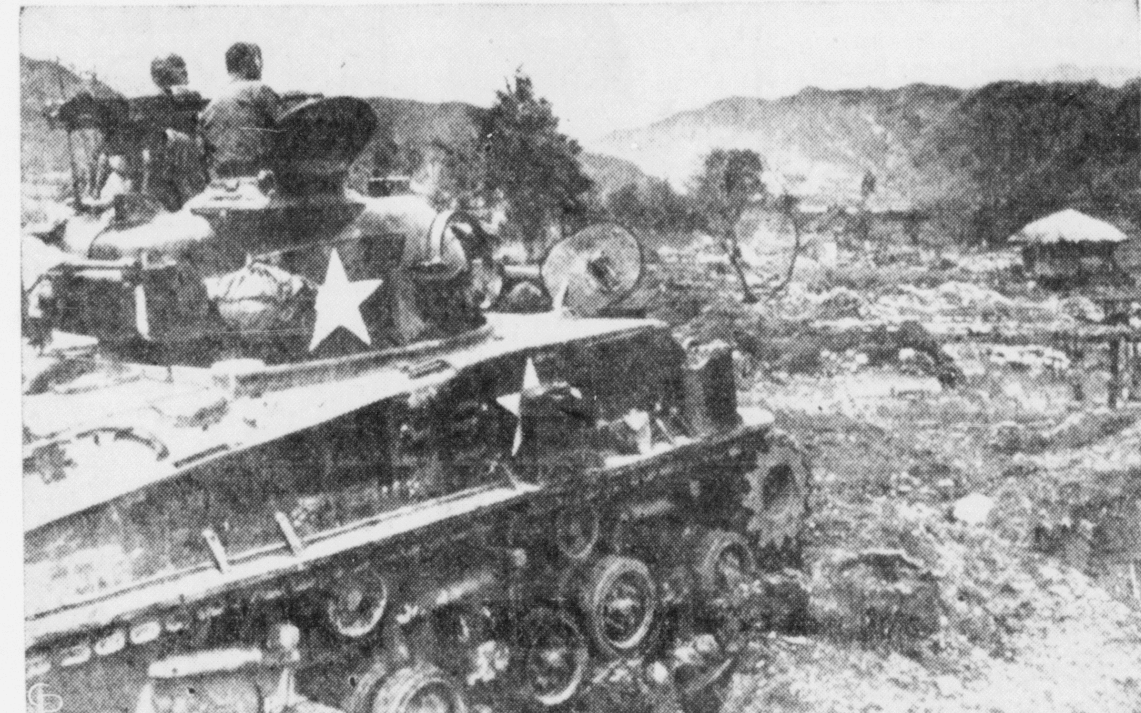

"Pete" said that one night recently he heard the familiar call of the owls along Sugar Creek.

Usually their call is something like this: "Hoo, hoo! Hoo, hoo! Hoo, hoo!"

It is due to his loud "hoo, hoo!" that he bears the name of the hoot owl, although he is really the great horn owl.

I have been in heavy woodland late in the night when a half dozen hoot owls could be heard in as many directions, some of them quite near and others a mile or more distant.

The uncanny call sends a chill of fear through the veins of the uninitiated.

Brewster Declares Korean War Promoted by Truman and Acheson

WASHINGTON, June 15—(AP)—Senator Brewster (R-Me) asserted today the Korean war is a "Truman-Acheson promotion" in which military decisions have been influenced by the State Department.

Brewster told a reporter that to support his contention he plans additional questioning of former Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson on what the Maine senator called "sharp differences in opinion" between the State and Defense departments.

Brewster said Johnson's initial testimony yesterday showed "the Korean war is an Acheson-Truman promotion," and he added:

"The military leaders did not advise it—Johnson said 'concur' in it was too strong—and they did not oppose. He also testified that there was no estimate of our military requirements at the time Secretary of State Acheson and President Truman decided to go into Korea."

With Johnson called back today (9 A. M. EST) to testify in the Senate inquiry into Gen. Douglas MacArthur's ouster and related policies, Senator Cain (R-Wash) said he wants more details on the former cabinet member's differences with Acheson.

Cain noted at one point Johnson told the Senate armed services and foreign relations committees yesterday Acheson seemed to want "nothing to do with the Chinese Nationalists."

Cain said that appeared to be "a direct contradiction" of Acheson's previous testimony the State Department had always supported the Nationalists.

Testifying on Mr. Truman's dismissal of MacArthur as Pacific commander, Johnson told senators yesterday that such "support" was lacking from the State Department for the Chiang Kai Shek Nationalists, now on Formosa. He said he sensed "seeming hostility" to Chiang.

He said that at times "political pressure" was put on the joint chiefs of staff and added that he had "battled" with "anybody that wanted to sell the president on the idea we had no interest in Formosa," before he himself was eased out of the cabinet last September.

"And who wanted to sell the president on that idea?" asked Senator Hickenlooper (R-Iowa).

"My understanding is from time to time the State Department did," Johnson said. "I am not trying to tag any individual. I am laying away from getting into personalities just as deliberately as I know how in all these answers."

Johnson, now in private law practice here, put on Acheson the main burden of the advice to Mr. Truman to intervene in Korea.

Johnson testified today Gen. Douglas MacArthur took responsibility and carried out the Inchon landing in Korea despite misgivings by the U. S. joint chiefs of staff. He said the JCS gave MacArthur a chance to call it off a week before it was launched.

The Inchon landing was a sea movement of troops up the west coast of Korea last September. It proved to be a brilliant stroke, bypassing the bulk of North Korean troops that had advanced far into South Korea.

Congressman Describes Mighty Explosion of New Atomic Bomb

NEW ORLEANS, June 15—(AP)—The mightiest atomic explosion yet seen by congressional observers vaporized the steel tower on which the bomb was mounted and blasted everything except a few charred palm tree stumps from an Eniwetok Atoll Island.

This picture of the power of a new series of a-bombs was presented by Rep. F. Edward Hebert (pronounced "A-bear") (D-La), recently returned from the Eniwetok experiments. He attended as an official observer for the House armed services committee. Of it Hebert said:

"I had a feeling I was standing at the gates of hell looking into eternity."

He gave a graphic account of the test in the first of a series of articles he wrote for the New Orleans States and which that paper made available to the Associated Press.

The Congress member wrote guardedly that the bomb he saw detonated was "several times the

Many Drug Addicts Among Teen-Agers

NEW YORK, June 14—(AP)—A police estimate that 6,000 New York City school-age children are dope addicts highlighted the close of a three-day hearing held by state narcotics probes.

The estimate came from Lt. Bernard Boylan of the narcotics bureau, who presented statistics at yesterday's windup session.

Boylan said the new figure increases by 1,000 all previous tabulations. Asked how many of the drug addicts actually are in school, he replied:

"Truthfully, I could not answer that question."

But Boylan offered no objection when Attorney General Nathaniel L. Goldstein said there were "at least 1,500" school children addicted to drugs in some form.

It was the recorded testimony of young drug users which dramatically told how they became enslaved to the dope habit and named names, addresses and locations where narcotics dealers keep their supplies.

Goldstein said he would furnish all detailed information to police within 12 hours, with the implication that he expected speedy action from authorities.

Senate Committee Votes for Controls

WASHINGTON, June 15—(AP)—The Senate banking committee agreed today to extend federal rent controls beyond June 30 and apply them to "critical defense areas."

No definite time was set, however, for the length of the extension. At the same time, the committee decided:

Not to interfere with existing state or local rent regulations such as those now in effect in New York State. The federal rent control program would take over, however, if the local or state rents were found to exceed the national level over a period of six months.

Dope in Falsies

HONOLULU, June 15—(AP)—U. S. customs agents today found $60,000 worth of narcotics in a pair of falsies worn by a woman passenger from the Orient aboard the liner President Cleveland.

The World Today

BY JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON, June 15—(P)—It's your Congress, so how would you answer this one:

Should the executive branch of the government—such as the State and Defense departments—tell Congress the deepest secrets in foreign affairs and in military planning?

The question was raised by Lt. Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer before the Senate committees investigating General MacArthur's firing. Wedemeyer said no secrets should be kept from Congress.

Anyone answering the question has to divide it:

1. Members of Congress are elected by the people to represent them in guarding their welfare. The biggest brass in the Pentagon and State Department are simply hired servants of the people.

Therefore, it would seem that the people, through Congress, should be judge of what their welfare is and must know what's going on at all times, since whatever the State and Defense departments do involves the public welfare.

It's assumed that these hired people, the big brass, can be trusted to do what they think best for the country. But, unless Congress knows what's going on, our fate may wind up in the hands of a few hired officials.

2. But would it really be wise to tell members of Congress all the secrets? If one of them blabbed, the information might enable an enemy to hurt this country or even destroy it, for the more people who know a secret the less secret it is. In short: can all members of Congress be trusted to keep their mouths shut about things they shouldn't discuss in public?

Perhaps there's no single answer to the biggest secrets except one that lies in the middle-ground, such as happened with the development of the atomic bomb during World War II.

That's been called the best kept secret of the war but the members of the congressional committees which voted money for the project didn't know precisely what the money was for. They took it on trust from the executive branch that the money was needed for highly secret work.

Right now the one group in Congress, above all, with the best record for keeping secrets is the joint committee on atomic energy. It has 18 members. It's their job to ride herd on our atomic program.

But there are some things which even these members don't want to know. They have refused from time to time to be told certain facts although later, when the situation changed, they may have asked for those facts.

One member of this committee—Senator Edwin C. Johnson, Colorado Democrat—caused a bit of a sensation in November, 1949, when he had a few things to say over television about the bomb, such as how much more powerful our bomb were then—and will be—than the ones dropped on Japan in 1945.

Johnson denied he had spilled any secrets. He said it was all "old stuff."

Leaks in Congress have become notorious. There are no secrets at the wide open public hearings. It's in the executive sessions—behind closed doors that the highly confidential information is given Congress by officials of the executive branch.

The most recent example of a big lead was in March when a member of a Senate committee showed a reported a copy of a statement which General Eisenhower had made to the committee a month before.

Eisenhower, trying to build up Europe's defenses, said he'd drop an atom bomb on the Russians if he thought it worthwhile; and he said 12 American divisions could hold the Breton peninsula in France against the Russians.

One reporter who covers the House and spends a lot of his time pumping members about what happens in those executive sessions said: "I think I could find out anything I wanted to know."

Then, perhaps because he thinks he works harder at the pumping business than reporters on the Senate side of the capitol, he added: "I have to spend a nickel to buy a man a coffee. On the other

Rural Traffic Accidents Are On The Increase

Sheriff Hays Urges Greater Caution On Highways

Ohio's rural traffic accidents are higher so far this year than in 1950, in fact the increase is larger than in the country at large.

Fatalities have not yet jumped, according to Sheriff Orland Hays, but, they can be expected to follow the upward trend that has been shown in the rest of the states.

Sheriff Hays points to the record in Fayette County so far this year, with more accidents but only two fatalities.

Two thirds of the drivers involved in highway accidents have been in violation of the traffic code, he points out.

Speed accounts for 37 percent of the violations with "on wrong side of road" and "following too closely" next in order. The latter two combined do not equal the speed violations.

Ohio traffic will be from 30 to 50 percent heavier during the next three months," Sheriff Hays said. "Eight major national routes across the state will bring hundreds of tourists and vacationers within our borders. Ohioans will be going places too. Our casualty list will follow the travel curve, unless every driver is more than usually careful and courteous."

"The posted legal speed in an area is the fastest it is ever safe to travel. Often the legal speed is too fast for safety, when vehicles or pedestrians or both are numerous. Recent tests indicate that moderate speeds cost very little extra travel time, and burn much less gasoline, than travel at break-neck paces.

"Many of our 'wrong side of road' violations may be examples of 'speed in the wrong places,' but there is no question that all of them are examples of negligent driving. Whenever you are to the left of the center line it is up to you to avoid all interference with traffic that is in its rightful place. Walkers can stay out of the accident statistics, and the hospital, side the senators bust down the doors to buy the reporters a coffee."

A reporter on the Senate side said his work wasn't that easy, that he has to use a pumping system of his own.

Atomic Weapons On the Increase

More Frequent Full Scale Tests Seen

WASHINGTON, June 15—(P)—American scientists are improving atomic weapons so rapidly it will be necessary to increase the number and frequency of full-scale field tests like the series recently held at Eniwetok.

This word came out of a news conference yesterday by civilian and military scientists of the Atomic Energy Commission (AEC) and the defense department. The conference was called to tell the public something of what was done at the Eniwetok experiments in April and May.

The good progress indicated for standard nuclear fission weapons also appears to extend, in some measure, to the quest for the even mightier weapons, a hydrogen bomb. Dr. Alvin C. Graves, director of the test division of the Los Alamos, N. M., laboratories where bombs are made, said cautiously that "we have gained new information and understanding of the basic phenomena underlying thermonuclear reactions" and that "much useful information was secured."

But the weaponeers were careful not to specify precisely what new information had been gleaned from the atomic tests toward a better understanding of a hydrogen bomb which probably would have to be "triggered" by the multi-million degree heat of a nuclear fission bomb.

Former AEC Chairman David E. Lilienthal, in a broadcast from New York, later said he was "shocked" at what he called "the helpful tips" given the Russians in the report. He said he referred particularly to disclosure of "our priority on weapons."

Talking about the Eniwetok tests in general, Lt. Gen. Elwood R. Quesada, commander of the joint task force which conducted them, said they were "successful in every respect."

In Agreement On Jap-Treaty

LONDON, June 15—(P)—United States and British leaders announced today they have reached "full agreement" on the draft of a Japanese peace treaty.

A communique was issued here by President Truman's representative, John Foster Dulles, and British Foreign Secretary Herbert Morrison. It said the British-American accord on the Japanese treaty still is subject to approval of the two governments.

Dulles and Morrison did not disclose how they proposed to settle the knotty problems of Chinese participation in the Japanese settlement and the future of Formosa.

Informed sources said the British and Americans had agreed to let the Japanese decide for themselves whether to sign a treaty with Chinese Communists or the Chinese Nationalists, or to sign with neither.

Municipal Court Should Prove Satisfactory

The new municipal court bill which Gov. Lausche has signed into law becomes effective next January. A judge is to be elected at the coming November election here to take over this court of record.

More than a dozen other cities will have created for them new municipal courts under this law. Such places as Lancaster, Ashland, Bellefontaine, Mt. Vernon and Wooster are among those where new courts are to be installed.

There was some opposition here to the new bill as is passed the Ohio General Assembly from justices-of-the-peace who are eliminated within the jurisdiction of the court and from the city council. There was contention that the people should have had a chance to vote for such a change. Supporters of the bill, however, pointed out that only the legislature can create such new courts and there is no authority for a popular vote on the proposition.

Aside from this argument however there seems little doubt but that the new court offers a distinct advantage over the justice-of-the-peace and police court system.

A qualified attorney must be judge. This eliminates the average justice-of-the-peace anywhere over the state, from consideration, unless he is an attorney.

The new judge will be on a salary, not under the fee system, therefore precluding him from having any financial interest in the outcome of a case before him.

The municipal court also will be a court of record which has many advantages over the other type of court. A motor car driver who violates the law may have his license removed under this court, something the police court could not do.

The expense, which this city and the rest of the county which is under the court's jurisdiction, will share, should be little if any, greater than under the present system with the probability of more income to the territory involved.

Civil cases involving up to $2,000 may be tried. Also criminal cases where felonies are not involved.

The new court is expected to have more of a court room atmosphere than the average justice's court and thus would tend to be more efficient.

Many cities similar in size to Washington C. H. already have municipal courts which are reported to be functioning satisfactorily. A great many civil cases are disposed of with greater dispatch than is true under the present system.

Regarded from all angles and with consideration of the fact that a judge for this court will be elected by the people, the overall result should prove very satisfactory.

Power Is Tempting

Many observers in and out of Washington continue to reiterate that President Truman will not be a candidate for re-election in 1952. That conclusion would have had the solid support of precedent in a former period.

Woodrow Wilson, sick as he was in the last months of his second term, would have welcomed a renomination.

Coolidge did not choose to run away from many in his circle were convinced he would have run if the convention had drafted him. Hoover, like Taft, had no chance of a second term.

Franklin Roosevelt took four terms, thus violating the ancient precedent as many before him had wanted to do.

The new constitutional amendment, now limiting a president to two terms, does not apply to Truman. The burdens of the office are great but the power is stimulating. So those who prophesy that Truman won't run have no basis for their prediction unless the president has confided in them that he will not. And such a decision on his part, as of today, would not necessarily be final.

The early bird not only gets the worm, but also the strawberries and the cherries.

Diet and Health Problem Is Created By Poor Circulation

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN

Many older people often suffer from decreased circulation to the legs. This disturbance in the blood supply may be due either to hardening or spasm of the arteries, as well as to varicose or enlarged veins.

A number of methods of attempting to improve the circulation have been employed, such as the application of heat, exercise, and the use of pressure. It is thought that some of these procedures may be harmful.

Damage to Tissues

Heat applied directly to the legs, while it may help the blood flow, carries some danger of damage to the tissues. Hence, it is suggested that the heat be applied to the trunk or upper extremities. This, by reflex action, causes a marked increase in the flow of blood to the legs and feet.

If the arms are to be treated, the legs and body are warmed with blankets and heating pads. The flow of blood to the muscles in the arms and legs rises when the body is heated, although to a lesser degree than occurs in the hands and feet.

Blood Flow Increased

The blood flow to the legs is increased by having the legs lower than the rest of the body. If the legs are raised, the blood flow is cut down. Alternating lowering and raising the legs thus has been used in treating the circulatory difficulty in some cases. This type of treatment may be unwise in some cases, since the feet may be deprived of needed blood, although the blood to the calf muscles is increased.

Alternating pressure and release of pressure, as is obtained by using a rubber cuff around the leg, also may actually decrease the blood flow to the legs. However, the pressure does speed up the rate of blood flow in the veins. On the other hand, light pressure, as with an elastic stocking, may be useful, since it cuts down the size of the openings through the veins, thus increasing the pressure of the blood flow through them. However, this treatment should not be employed unless the amount of blood being carried to the legs by the arteries is adequate, and only the doctor should be the judge as to the kind of treatment to be employed in each case.

Eamon DeValera On Second Term

DUBLIN, Ireland, June 15—(AP)—Gaunt, scholarly Eamon De Valera—68 but as full of fight as ever—begins his second term as prime minister of Ireland today after three years on the sidelines.

The Brooklyn-born firebrand, who has devoted most of his life to a crusade for Irish independence from Britain, won his comeback battle last night by a slim margin of five votes. Irish political experts are predicting a short life for his new government.

The Dail (lower House of Parliament) elected De Valera after first ousting John A. Costello, leader of the coalition block that had ruled Ireland since 1948.

With the Dail almost evenly split and troubles by a score of domestic problems, De Valera will face a running fight to stay in power.

leave of absence or retire, it was announced last night. Albert A. Horstman, national committeeman and Montgomery County Democratic chairman, said the 44-year-old lawmaker is confined to his Washington home with a blood ailment.

Romance in Government Red Tape

By Hal Boyle

NEW YORK —(AP)—Should the American government have a department of romance? Do we need a U. S. bureau of love?

There are millions of single people living in this country, and what is Congress doing about getting them together, nothing.

It doesn't even pay a bounty to people who want to get married. Yet if government is going to enter every other branch of human activity, shouldn't it do something about love? Isn't love the biggest welfare project of all?

The suggestion for a federal matrimonial bureau comes from a reader, George Durst of Jamaica, N. Y. He believes it might be one of the few branches of government able to pay its own way.

"For a reasonable fee of $5.50, including the romance tax," Durst wrote, "it could register all sincere, marriage-minded men and women and publish their descriptions in a monthly federal matrimonial bulletin."

Durst says the U. S. government printing office already sells bulletins "on such vital topics as the love life of polar bears." And if it is willing to help single polar bears, he feels it should extend the same courtesy to single people, particularly wealthy spinsters.

"Such a plan would inspire the older girls — mature women — to realize that they can't take it with them, so why let the income tax man grab it?" Durst added.

"Many of these mature women can afford to own a husband today, and use him as a practical income tax deduction as well as a utility mascot around the house."

His idea has much to recommend it, and certainly sounds like a real bonanza to the treasury. Naturally, however, a U. S. bureau of love wouldn't merely halt at printing an index of matrimonial prospects. It would have to do the job right. It would have to arrange gay little parties at which the wife-seekers and the husband-hunters could properly introduced to each other in an informal atmosphere.

And you know how government bureaus tend to grow. Soon it would be having branch offices in night clubs and restaurants. And who would want to work for the department of state then, if he could wangle a post in the bureau of love and spend his working hours having cocktails with shy taxpayers seeking matehood?

And how about dishonesty in office? Wouldn't the unmarried employees of the bureau grab off the rich widows and widowers for themselves and cheat the dues-paying public? It wouldn't do any good to insist that all the employees be married. For a million-dollar prospect, half of them would ditch their own wives and husbands.

There is another reason why Congress probably never will create a federal matrimonial bureau. You can blame your congressman today for every single thing wrong with your life except a bad marriage. You could hold him responsible for that, too, if the government entered the wedding business.

That is one field the wise politician will want to stay out of. It is unlikely that we will have bureaucratic love or romance in red tape in our time.

White Collar Class Obsolescence

By George Sokolsky

Representative Clifford Davis of Tennessee, like his colleague, Frederic R. Coudert, Jr., of New York, introduced a measure in Congress which raises this question: if a corporation can set aside a reserve to take care of obsolescence in machinery, why may not a citizen protect himself against his own obsolescence?

This particular problem affects most of the professional elements in the population. Of these, Mr. Davis said:

"Doctors, lawyers, engineers, architects, and most other professional men must spend many years in acquiring their education. They then face many more years in acquiring the experience, the training, and the clients, that will permit them to earn an adequate income. If they are competent, and fortunate, they may begin to earn a good income by the time they are 45 or 50. As prudent men, however, they must realize that in another 15 or 20 years their income will begin going down again and that it behooves them to set aside something for their old age. But they are not able to do so because of high taxes. These men are at a definite disadvantage as compared with taxpayers whose total income during their lifetime has been the same but spread more uniformly over the years. For the latter will pay a smaller total amount of income taxes and will, in addition, be able to start saving for their old age at an earlier date."

This is a correct appraisal of the situation. A doctor puts in between eight and 11 years before he amounts to anything. This time is consumed in college courses and internships. Engineers, architects and even journalists have to spend many years preparing for their vocations. It is not so hard on lawyers, but nowadays, the best lawyers are not those who hang out their shingles upon leaving college, but rather those who pursue long clerkships at very small remuneration. Many of them go into government bureaus for their training and apprenticeship, working for small pay.

When the professional man hits the higher brackets, his taxes consume so large a share of his income that he cannot hope to set aside much for the day when his reflexes are no longer what they should be. Nor can he always or even often set himself up as a business to protect his obsolescence. A doctor, for instance, cannot be a business. In his later years, he can find himself in financial difficulties, although his experience is invaluable.

Teachers and professors cover themselves by varieties of pension funds. The physician, surgeon, novelist, architect, musician and such are not so situated. Generally they cannot benefit from pension funds. They have to go on working until they drop. One of the highest mortality groups in the United States is the medical profession for while doctors can advise others to take it easy, they cannot take their own advice.

This is an extremely serious situation, for whereas in many occupations necessary training is slight and experience limited, in the professions training is of long duration and the value of experience comes with gray hairs. A boy can learn to run a tractor on a farm; no boy can be a brain surgeon or can diagnose a cancer.

The seriousness of this situation is not as much individual as it is national. If it becomes economically too unattractive for Americans to go through the trying years of preparation for a professional career, fewer of our young people will go into such vocations. Already, there is danger that we shall run short of scientists of various kinds because of the mistaken notion that all men being equal, a moron should have the same opportunities for education, which he cannot absorb, as a bright boy. This can work out, under conscription, that the smart boys will be unavailable to prepare themselves for infinitely useful service. We can be defeated by a lack of scientists more effectively than by a lack of infantrymen. We might even fail in chemical and biological defense because we do not train sufficient chemists and biologists. The shortage of physicians and surgeons is already a serious national problem.

This is a very important matter that requires competent study. The politicians rarely worry about the next generation which has no votes now. But the next generation comes up fast and is upon us before we realize it.

Atlantic Pact Not Excluded at Meet

WASHINGTON, June 15—(AP)—Secretary of State Acheson said United States proposals for a big four meeting would not preclude discussion there of the North Atlantic pact.

He declined to elaborate his point. The subject has been the key issue between the west and Russia in preliminary talks at Paris, where efforts have failed so far to produce agreement on agenda.

The import of Acheson's response to a news conference question was the Russians knew quite well it was not necessary to have the treaty listed on the program of discussion in order to have it talked about. At the same time he declined to say why, that being true, the United States was unwilling to have it put on an agenda.

Acheson said the United States was disappointed that the Soviets could not accept any one of three discussion programs on world tensions which this government has proposed as a basis for a big four session to be held here late next month. Each of the three, he said, was satisfactory to Great Britain and France.

Pair Sentenced On Fraud Charge

CINCINNATI, June 15—(AP)—The U. S. Court of Appeals affirmed the conviction of Imogene and Joseph Stephens for fraudulently obtaining $5,000 from a Germantown, O., farmer.

Imogene Stephens, 24, and Joseph Stephens, 25, who are divorced, were sentenced to 2 1/2 years' imprisonment for conspiracy to defraud George F. Bergard, 48, of the money.

Testimony at the trial was that Imogene promised to marry Bergard after she made provision for her sick father. Bergard gave her the $5,000 in a bus station in Hamilton, O., then disappeared. It was said in court.

Sunday School Lesson

By ROY L. SMITH

The eleven men who covered in their hiding places, waiting for their first chance to escape back to Galilee following the crucifixion of Jesus, would hardly have been picked by anyone to be the band that would upset the world.

They had neither prestige, power, fame, nor following. They were unorganized, had little concept of their task, had never been outside of Palestine, and were pitted against the greatest political state the world had ever seen up to that time.

Secret Service Men Everywhere

The Roman secret service—an ancient gestapo—was the most closely knit and efficient instrument of persecution the world had ever seen. There was not a town of as many as two thousand anywhere in the empire that did not have its secret cell. It would have been almost impossible to bring a hundred men together anywhere that did not include at least one informer among them.

An Unholy Alliance

The religious authority among the Jews, and a considerable measure of civil authority as well, was in the hands of a little clique of highly placed individuals—all very rich and very secular—in Jerusalem. By devious means they manipulated the Temple system for their own enrichment, and brooked no interference. Some years before Rome had required that no one might rule as High Priest without the consent of Caesar, and this little gang managed to keep one of their number in that post of power by the annual payment of an enormous bribe. In return, the Romans guaranteed to maintain the peace, quell any uprisings, and support the party in power.

These Had Crucified Jesus

The ruling clique among the Jews, headed by Annas, the leader of the clan who had once been High Priest himself, had contrived the crucifixion of Jesus. The Sanhedrin, which was the official governing body of the temple, was frequently by-passed by the Annas gang which maintained something like a "kitchen cabinet" of its own wherein it settled matters of special interest to them. There is some reason to doubt that the legal Sanhedrin had much to do with the death of Jesus. It was the work of Annas and his crowd who feared Jesus' influence among the people.

Peter Defied Them

It would have been a thrilling meeting for a newspaper reporter to have attended. A fisherman from Galilee standing up in the presence of the powerful and unscrupulous Annas and his outfit, charging them with the outrage of having crucified Jesus and declaring that the man they had murdered had been the Messiah of the Jews.

The Uniform Sunday School lesson for June 17: "The Spread of the Gospel," Acts 1:8; 4:28; Romans 1:1-16.

It was the first open clash of the disciples with the authorities, and it should be remembered that the man who delivered the charge that day had been terrified by a little girl, only a few nights before, so that he had denied even knowing Jesus. But something had happened in the meantime, which had transformed the fisherman and all the others of his little band. Jesus had been raised from the dead. Nothing, they believed, could happen to them now. Death had lost all its significance; it had been robbed of its terror.

It Was a Desperate Struggle

One cannot read the New Testament, especially the Book of Acts, without getting the impression that the Christians believed they were engaged in a life and death struggle with evil forces.

One gets the impression from a very great deal of the activity of the modern Christian Church that it has lost this sense of struggle, and is engaged in a program to placate evil forces and win friends among the powerful without changing any evil designs they may have.

Men Can Still Enlist In Service Desired

Staff Sergeant James C. Kelly, in charge of the local U. S. Army and U. S. Air Force Recruiting Station, announced today that he has received notification from recruiting headquarters at Fort Hayes, Columbus. That the regulation pertaining to enlistment of men who have been ordered by their local draft board, to report for pre-induction physical examinations under the Selective Service system, have been temporarily suspended for a period of thirty days.

This amendment means that men who have been notified to report or who have already been examined and who are waiting for their draft call, can now enlist in the service of their choice, and can enlist any time up until the mailing of the order to report for induction by their local draft board.

While not definite it has been indicated that this modification of the regulations will expire on or about July 15.

More Stringent Liability Law

Responsibility Is Tightened Up

COLUMBUS, June 15—(AP)—Gov. Frank J. Lausche has signed an act that sets up more stringent financial responsibility requirements for Ohio motorists.

The governor signed 22 other pieces of legislation enacted by the 99th general assembly.

The new financial responsibility law becomes effective March 1, 1953, and will replace one that had been in effect for a number of years.

Under the new law, motorists involved in accidents in which damage exceeds $100, must make a written report to the state registrar of motor vehicles within five days, unless injuries delay the report.

The registrar could order motorists without liability insurance to post cash or bond as high as $15,000 depending on the seriousness of the accident, as security to cover damages pending final settlement.

If the motorists failed to post the security within 10 days after the notice, the registrar would be compelled to suspend his driving rights and the licenses for all motor vehicles in his name.

Liability insurance could be posted as security.

Pretty Out-door Wedding Unites Couple in Marriage

A wedding beautiful in its simplicity was solemnized at the home of Mrs. Clarence Franklin Pensyl, 630 Yeoman Street Thursday afternoon, June 14 when her only daughter, Amelia became the bride of Mr. Ralph Keith Child of 534 Columbus Avenue, foster son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Cross.

The guests were confined to the immediate families and the single ring service was read by Rev. Allen W. Caley, pastor of Grace Methodist Church as the hands of the clock approached three, as the couple stood on the beautiful lawn with roses, lilies, delphinium and California poppies forming a gorgeous natural background.

Miss Pensyl was given in marriage by her eldest brother, George and her matron of honor and only attendant was her sister-in-law, Mrs. Clark Pensyl.

Mr. T. A. Stevens of Columbus attended the bridegroom as best man.

The bride, who carried out the tradition of something old and something new, wore for her marriage a gabardine suit in a dusty rose shade, a frilly white blouse and other accessories of white and a strand of pearls was her only jewelry. A cluster of green cymbidium orchids with pink throats was pinned at her shoulder and she carried an heirloom handkerchief belonging to the bridegroom's mother.

Her attendant was wearing a white etched nylon dress with accessories of white and her corsage was of pink rosebuds. Mrs. Pensyl the bride's mother, chose for the occasion an orchid and grey print French voile dress and her corsage was of pink roses.

A reception followed the wedding and the home throughout was decorated with roses from the Pensyl garden.

The bride's table in the dining room was centered with a three tiered wedding cake decorated with pink rosebuds and white doves and was topped with the traditional bride and groom and the ice cream molds were wedding bells in pink and white.

Mrs. George Pensyl served the cake, Mrs. Charles Pensyl served the punch and Mrs. Clark Pensyl presided over the silver coffee service. Mrs. George Pensyl and Mrs. Charles Pensyl had identical corsages of yellow roses. The family remained for a buffet supper honoring the new Mr. and Mrs. Child before their departure on their honeymoon in the western states when the new Mrs. Child donned an attractive hat in a dusty rose straw.

Upon their return they will reside at 534 Columbus Avenue.

The bride attended Miami University, Oxford, and Ohio State University, Columbus, and plans to continue her position on the teaching staff at Cherry Hill School. Mr. Child attended Ohio State University, Columbus and is engaged in farming.

Beautiful Afternoon Party Is Given at Country Club

The Washington Country Club was the setting on Thursday afternoon for a delightful social event when Mrs. Albert S. Stemler, Mrs. Loren D. Hynes, Mrs.

Edward L. Bush, Mrs. Robert Heath and Mrs. Robert Terhune entertained a large group of guests at a luncheon bridge.

Patriotic colors in observance of Flag Day elaborately carried out in artistic arrangements of roses, delphinium, mock orange blossoms, Japanese iris and scabiosa were admired throughout the club room.

Nineteen small tables seating the guests for a most tempting luncheon had white covers and small crystal vases in the center held red, white and blue flowers in daisies, scabiosa and mock orange blossoms and places were marked with place-card tallies featuring small flag designs to further carry out the clever Flag Day theme.

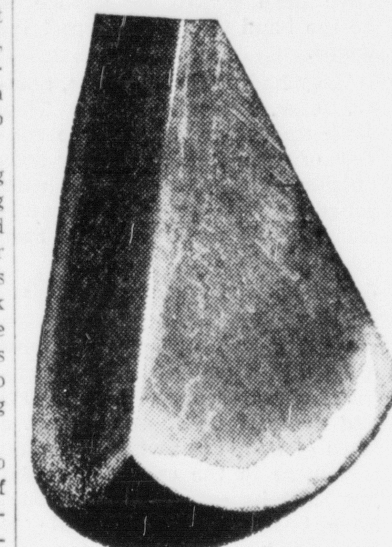

The afternoon passed all too soon in the spirited game of progressive bridge and at the conclusion of play the hostesses presented appropriate gifts of beautifully wrapped American flags to Mrs. Willard Perrill who was the holder of high score, Mrs. John Forsythe, who received second and Mrs. Alice Renick third.

Reds Drop Third One to Giants

New York Pounds Cincy Pitchers in 11 to 6 Win

BY RALPH RODEN
(By The Associated Press)

The Cincinnati Reds dropped their third in a row yesterday to the New York Giants, 11-6.

Howie Fox clearly showed the effects of his two-week layoff. He was clubbed for four runs on four singles and a double in the first frame. Herman Wehmeier relieved him in the fourth, but was clipped himself for the same number of tallies in the fifth. Four solid homers—including Eddie Stanky's homer-plus errors by Virgil Stallcup and Johnny Wyrostek accounted for the markers.

The Giants picked up three more runs off Eddie Erault and Bud Byerly in the sixth and seventh innings to tuck the game in their back pocket.

The Reds, in the meantime, were hitting the ball right on the nose, but getting nowhere. They picked up a run in the third on a free ride and two singles and added three more in the sixth on four hits.

Bobby Adams and Grady Hatton gave Cincinnati consolation runs with home runs in the seventh and eighth rounds.

IT WILL BE SINK OR swim for major league teams at midnight tonight.

The deadline for player trades will toll then. After midnight no major league teams will be allowed to trade until the completion of the championship season. The only loophole is that players may be obtained on waivers.

At the pace the Chicago White Sox and Brooklyn Dodgers are moving it is doubtful if any team will trade with them. Yet both are looking for additional strength.

The Sox stretched their American League lead over the New York Yankees to 4½ games by beating the Washington Senators, 8-7 and 14-5 in a two-night doubleheader last night. The Yankees' game with the St. Louis Browns was rained out.

Brooklyn remained six games in front in the National League as a result of a stirring 2-1 triumph over the St. Louis Cardinals. Gil Hodges homered with two out in the ninth.

Sixth inning home runs by Ray Boone and Jim Hegan sparked the Cleveland Indians to a 3-1 triumph over the Philadelphia Athletics. Bob Lemon went all the way to post his seventh victory.

Heavy hitting also enabled Russ Meyer of the Philadelphia Phils and Murray Dickson of the Pittsburgh Pirates to post easy triumphs.

Meyer stopped the Chicago Cubs, 11-3, and Dickson turned back the Boston Braves, 9-4.

The Phils pounded out 16 hits with Ed Waitkus and Richie Ashburn leading the way with three safeties apiece. Wally Westlake featured a 13-hit Pirate attack, driving in four runs on his 16th homer and two singles.

By HAROLD HARRISON

MARIETTA, June 15—(AP)—Twelve college coaches too a look today at "La Belle Riviere" and their collective verdict was "phooey."

"La Belle Riviere," in case you didn't know, is the old Indian name for the famous Ohio River. "Phooey" is the 20th century name that coaches are giving condition of the stream.

But whether it is "La Belle Riviere" or "phooey" they will go through with the running of the intercollegiate regatta here Saturday.

And despite the state of the river, Washington and California still are the favorites. Here is the situation:

The Ohio is in bad shape for a crew race. The river is rising. It is swift, and the forecasts are that it will continue to rise until Saturday.

One shell was punctured today but it was repaired. One coach said, "It doesn't look good."

A real authority of the intercollegiate regatta association, who declined to be quoted, said frankly that it looked like this will be the last year the race will be held at Marietta -- unless river conditions clear considerably within the next 24 hours.

He said Poughkeepsie, N. Y., already has made a bid for the meet next year and that invitations also have been received from Seattle, Wash., and Syracuse, N. Y.

Hotel rooms were at a premium and bystanders lined the river to see the crews in action during practice sessions.

The last two crews to compete in the big race -- Pennsylvania and Syracuse -- arrived yesterday.

Nine Horses Lined Up for Belmont Run

NEW YORK, June 15—(AP)—The latest count of noses today indicates that eight or nine colts, and possibly the smart filly How, will take a whirl at the $100,000-added Belmont stakes tomorrow.

Entries for the 83rd running of the mile and one-half Belmont, longest and toughest of the triple crown series, close this morning. Most people point to Count Turf, the Kentucky Derby winner, as the horse to beat for the rich and coveted prize.

Chief Challenger to Count Turf's bid for sophomore honors is expected to come from Battlefield, the 1950 two-year-old champion owned by George D. Widener, Belmont park president.

Others listed as almost certain to go are Battle Morn, from the Cain Hoy Stable of H. F. Guggenheim; C. V. Whitney's Counterpoint, the Brookmeade Stable's Steadfast, subbing for the injured Bold-winner of the Preakness; the King Ranch, Sonic; Walter D. Fletcher's Nullify, and Sam E. Wilson, Jr.'s Royal Mustang.

Welders Win 3 to 0 Over Armco Team

Only one occupant, the Welding School, remained on the top of the city softball race after taking a 3 to 0 win over third place Armco at Wilson Field Thursday evening.

Four errors by the Armco fielders helped the Welders to their victory.

This is the fourth straight win for the Welders with no losses which gives them one game lead over the W. C. French team.

Sabina Schedules Two Games on Friday Night

Announcement was made today that the McPherson-Huff team will meet the Sabina Lions at Memorial Field in Sabina in the first game of a twin bill at 7 o'clock Friday night (tonight). The other game, at 8:30 o'clock, will pit the Sabina VFW team against the Marion team which won the district tournament championship in 1950.

for a 3-1 opening victory over Indianapolis. Three more homers by Kansas City elevated the Blues to an 11-9 nightcap decision.

Jim Atkins' four hitter gave Louisville a 3-0 first game verdict over Milwaukee. The Brewers grabbed the second 3-1 in 11 innings.

Minneapolis sliced Columbus' four-game winning streak by taking a 5-3 decision.

St. Paul stung Toledo twice. The Saints took a 4-2 count in the first game and rang a 7-1 nightcap win.

Louis-Savold Bout in Garden

NEW YORK, June 15—(AP)—Since it doesn't rain in Madison Square Garden, Joe Louis and Lee Savold positively will tangle in their overdue 15-round bout tonight.

An all-day rain, crossing up the weather forecasters, forced the second straight postponement of the battle of the ancients yesterday and sent the show indoors to the garden.

The International Boxing Club and the ball club proprietors have an agreement not to run competing shows outdoors. The Yankees host the Detroit Tigers at the stadium tonight.

Both of the fighters took the second delay philosophically. It started to drip early yesterday and they were resigned to the inevitable. Now, at least, they know the weather won't interfere with their plans any more.

They each limbered up lightly and then took things easily while the IBC beat frantically scurried around to change seating arrangements for tonight.

There's no change in the television arrangements, though. There won't be any for the general public. The same nine theaters in six cities—Pittsburgh, Washington, Baltimore, Chicago, Cleveland and Albany, N. Y.—will get the fight on their screens via a closed circuit.

Floating Dream Wins Another One

Floating Dream, who seems to thrive on a muddy track, outdistanced the field in the second division of the Abbedale Stakes No. 8 at Roosevelt Raceway, Thursday night to win the race in 2:11 4-5.

McKinley Kirk of Washington C. H. was the driver. He, along with the Valley Brothers of Waverly, own the Dream, who paid $3.10 to the lucky ones.

The Dream, as most folks around Washington C. H. know, holds the world record for two-year-old fillies.

Other winners at the Westbury, N. Y. track included Scotch Rhythm, regarded as one of the top filly threats for the Hambletonian, won the old country trot for three-year-old fillies at Roosevelt Raceway last night. Rain held the crowd to 6,054 harness racing fans.

Betsy Volo, another filly highly regarded for the Hambletonian, finished third. Neola Hanover was second.

Driven by Ralph Baldwin, Scotch Rhythm paid $5.30 $4.40

NCR Takes 14 to 2 Win over Armbrust

NCR's softballers really took a jump to the win side of the column as they downed the Armbrust team 14 to 2 on the Wilson diamond Thursday evening.

All 14 runs were made on only six hits off Shinkle the losing pitcher. Shinkle had difficulty keeping control as he pitched two homerun balls to Camp and Stanforth. The bases were loaded in the seventh when Stanforth connected for his round tripper.

Stanforth was also the winning pitcher. He gave up five hits, but kept them well scattered.

Snead Leads Pack In US Golf Open

BIRMINGHAM, Mich., June 15—(AP)—Samuel Jackson Snead, the man to beat in the par-staved 51st United States Golf Open, took a one-stroke lead into today's second 18-hole round with this humble tip:

"The angels will have to be riding smack on the shoulder of the man who wins this one. If you're lucky, you got it."

Not in 17 years has golf's supreme event undergone such huffing and puffing as marked yesterday's opening round in which Snead's one-over-par 71 was the best effort wrenched from Oakland Hills' terrifying course.

Chandler Harper, 1950 P. G. A. champion, did what a lot of his brethren probably would have liked to do. He refused to turn in his card after an opening nine 42 and simply announced: "to hell with it."

After today's 18-hole scramble, the field will be reduced to the low 50 scorers for Saturday's grueling 36-hole finale.

Bunched at 73, only two strokes off the pace were 10 players, including British Open Champion Bobby Locke, who scrambled riotously, Dutch Harrison, Denny Shute, Paul Runyan, Johnny Palmer, Smiley Quick, Al Brosch, Sam Byrd, Sam Bernardi and Charles Kelin.

Scouts Clarify Use of Cabin

District Committee Plans Activities

The Fayette district Boy Scout committee cleared up some misconceptions in connection with who is entitled to use the cabin at the Grove Davis farm Thursday night.

Committee members stated that the cabin, constructed largely through the efforts of Scoutmasters and scouts from materials provided by Davis, is available for the use of four groups.

The groups include the Camp Fire Girls, 4-H Clubs, Girl Scouts and Boy Scouts.

All are entitled to use the facilities of the cabin, which is located in a grove of trees overlooking a creek on the Davis farm, on the Greenfield Road.

To clear up the matter even further it was suggested that at least one leader from each of the four organizations meet with Davis sometime in the near future.

Recently Boy Scouts and their leaders hauled 18 steel cots (with springs), 18 mattresses a Coolerator, two tents, pots and pans, dishes and silverware and mops and brooms belonging to the Camp Fire Girls to the cabin.

Mrs. Murdock, president of the Council of Camp Fire Girls, extended an invitation to the district committee for Boy Scouts to use the Camp Fire Girls' equipment.

In other business, Leo Fisher reported that there are 25 Boy Scouts from various troops in Washington C. H. who are planning to attend Camp Lazarus. Frank Reno will be the leader for the Scouts who plan to attend the camp.

Announcement was made that the Lions Club-sponsored troop, number 222, will have 15 Boy Scouts in attendance at the camp July 2 for one week.

The district committee has been invited to attend the camp July 27 to conduct the board of review for the entire camp. The annual district meeting will be held November 26. Recognition of unit leaders has been set for December 3.

Roy Smith reported that the Lions Club of Bloomingburg will sponsor Troop 133. He also suggested that a meeting of all unit leaders, cubmasters, scoutmasters and unit committee secretaries, troop scribes and explorer advisors be held for the purpose of discussing journalism.

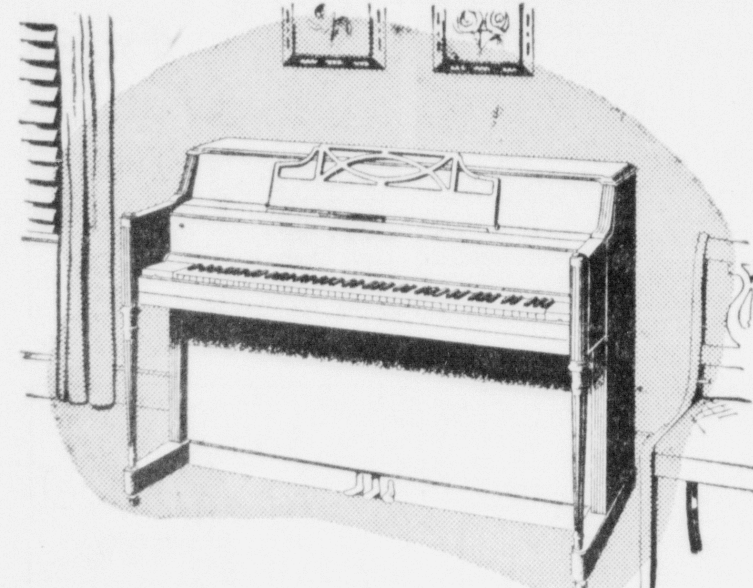

Leo Fisher was appointed by the district committee to employ workers to finish the Grove Davis cabin. The following work remains: building steps to the cabin, painting the interior and part of the exterior, finishing the roof and putting in another door.

Those present at the district committee meeting, held Thursday night in the Chamber of Commerce office, were Rev. Francis T. McCarty, Roy Smith, Virgil Bruce, Leo Fisher, Homer Davis, Earle Henderson, Lawrence Burris, Dwight Spengler and Ray Graft, scout executive.

Mrs. Donald Murdock, president of the Camp Fire Girls Council, was the guest.

Newcomers Hold Dance at Club

Newcomers made many friends here Thursday night, when they staged a dance at the Washington Country Club.

Forty-two couples danced to the music of the Rolland Chase band from 9 P. M. to 1 A. M. and enjoyed a full evening of conversation. The gala event was the last for the year of the Newcomers Club, an organization started here through the efforts of the Washington C. H. Chamber of Commerce.

Snacks and light refreshments were served throughout the evening. Chairman of the affair was Mrs. William Fink. Members of her committee included Mrs. C. R. Griffiths, Mrs. Marion Cameron, Mrs. Richard Whiteside, Mrs. Al Center, Mrs. Robert Parish and Mrs. Clyde Heisinger.

4-H Club Picks Its Fair Booth Committee

The Silver Thimble 4-H Club picked its fair booth committee at its meeting Friday. Those named to the committee included: Sue Minshall, Marchia Fletcher, Barbara McDonald and Clara Mathews.

Barbara McDonald reported on her trip to Washington D. C. and New York with her senior class.

Members worked on their tea towels and dresses. They discussed economic controls regulations included.

The Office of Price Stabilization (OPS) issued an order last night directing apparel manufacturers to compute new price for the estimated $15,000,000,000 worth of clothing they sell yearly.

The new prices, based on pre-Korean levels, would include certain increases resulting from higher materials and labor costs. OPS officials predicted the new ceilings will not change greatly the amounts people are now paying for clothing and accessories.

Price Director Michael V. DiSalle told midwestern cattle feeders in a stormy session at Chicago that the cattle price rollbacks announced for Aug. 1 and Oct. 1 would go into effect as planned.

Meanwhile, another near normal run of cattle arrived in midwest markets, spiking for the time being threats of a cattle famine. Some livestock interests had said cattle would be withheld from the market in protest against the recent 10 percent rollback on prices.

Beauty shops, barber shops, amusement centers and repair places, along with perhaps 1,000,000 other establishments rendering service to the public today must put up posters listing their ceiling prices.

OPS officials reminded service establishments that they also must file with district offices before midnight a list of the prices they put up. The ceilings must not be more than the highest price a concern charged during the general freeze period—last Dec. 19 through Jan. 25.

Core is married and has three children, who are 12, eight and four years of age.

needed and the consuming public will suffer.

Even if the fighting in Korea ended tomorrow, he said, controls still would be needed because the threat of Communism would remain.

Developments under existing economic controls regulations included:

School Board Petition Out

Otis B. Core, Washington C. H. attorney, is circulating a petition to have his name placed on the ballot in the November general election as a candidate for the school board.

Core has obtained the majority of the 45 signatures which are needed, but he indicated that he will probably get about 15 more before filing in the next few days.

Core seeks one of the three vacancies which will occur on the school board this year.

He is a practicing attorney in this city. He attended Ohio Wesleyan and Ohio State universities and passed the bar examination in 1932.

For three years, during World War II, Core served as juvenile and probate judge, filling the unexpired term of Judge Max Dice. He has practiced in Washington C. H. since 1940.

Core is married and has three children, who are 12, eight and four years of age.

Administration leaders expressed hope that during the weekend enough consumer-voters will make their views known to turn the tide. The president had virtually invited the voters to let their congressmen know how they feel.

"I am speaking for you and working as hard as I can to convince the members of Congress that we must have a strong anti-inflation law," the president said. "But I can't do the whole job by myself. This is something the whole country must support. It's up to all of us."

Mr. Truman cautioned that if inflation runs wild after June 30 because there is no law to curb it, the cost of the defense program will mount, more taxes will be McCarthy had estimated he would talk for six or seven hours. But, as the dinner hour approached, he began to skip many pages. Finally he relinquished the floor after two hours and 45 minutes. He had read only about one-third of his speech but he had all of it printed in the congressional record.

Only a few senators--three, part of the time--were present and no Democrat rose to challenge the Wisconsin senator. He got brief words of praise from two Republican colleagues, Senators Langer (ND) and Wherry (Neb). McCarthy two days earlier had written all Congress members he planned to attack Marshall in a speech Thursday.
